

Turning Point - Girls Transitional Living Program

Three Springs' Transitional Living Programs provide therapeutic services for girls ages 14 - 18 years of age. These adolescents typically have a prior history of treatment and are in need of a step down or transition back to their home environment.

These programs offer a combination of traditional group home services along with experiential/adventure based outdoor services based in a family type setting, where adolescents receive comprehensive services in a safe nurturing environment.

Adolescents also attend community public schools, local community colleges, or participate in an educational setting at a private Three Springs Schools. Therapeutic Services includes individual/group counseling, social skills, life skills training, and values clarification. Services also include community based activities, special needs counseling, career job placement, local transportation, and substance abuse counseling/education. Adolescents are evaluated by program staff and must be considered to be capable of benefiting from this type of therapeutic intervention.
